The week after the offer letter is the week you stop being remembered. Unless something good happens.

Your students land in the UK exhausted and alone, trying to solve a bank account, a SIM card and a first supermarket trip in a city they have never seen. The quiet week before fresher's week shapes how they remember their whole first term.

GSOS makes that week warm. A vetted current UK student – ideally sharing your student's language and culture – meets them at the airport, settles them into their accommodation, walks them through the practical first days, and sits with them through the first proper meal. Parents hear from us at every milestone, in their language.

The agent who recommended us is the agent the family remembers when the next sibling, cousin or friend's child is choosing the UK.
